First public message from the queen to President Dechaume, sent through Atlantic cable, 1888.

Glanders in a malignant form, has broken out among the horses of the Lincoln Ice Company, Chicago. Since Wednesday night seventeen afflicted animals have been killed.

Congressman James Laird, of the Second Nebraska District, is dangerously ill at his home in Hastings. Mr. B. F. Smith, who arrived at Lincoln Friday, reports that Mr. Laird's death is expected hourly.

The organs of the democracy are unable to refrain from finding fault with the president even when he is off on his vacation. But then fault-finding has long since become chronic with the democracy.

The poet, Robert Buchanan, was very much struck with the acting of Richard Mansfield in Richard III., and is now writing, it is said, two plays for that actor. Of course Mr. Mansfield will not play them both at one time.

Going across the Atlantic is now almost like flying. The City of Paris made the trip from New York to Queenstown in five days, twenty-three hours and forty minutes. This is the first time that the eastern passage has been made inside of six days. And still they are building faster steamers.

The republican league is preparing for systematic work in the southern states. That is not a promising field for political effort, but it has been neglected and abandoned too long by republicans, and should be occupied once more. The league is the organization that has the best chance of accomplishing useful results in that quarter. It can find and add multiply republican clubs and systematically undertake the political education of the south, especially on industrial question, it will do a great work for the country as well as the party.

The venerable General Francis E. Spinner, ex-treasurer of the United States, is said to be hopelessly ill at his home at Palm Beach, Florida, so that his death is likely to occur within a few weeks. The trouble is a cancer on his face, caused by wearing an ill-fitting pair of eye glasses. "My physician," he writes to a friend, "has given me strict orders that I must neither read nor write a single word. I will probably soon make my bow to the deities of this world and depart. I am suffering great pain."

General Spinner is nearly eighty-eight years old, having been born at Horkimer, New York, on January 21, 1802.

The navy department has ordered that the work of getting the ship-of-war Galena ready for service in Egyptian waters be pushed forward as rapidly as possible. It is said that Rear-Admiral Gherardi, who is now at Port-Arthur with the veteran Kearsarge, in anticipation of General Haythornthwaite's overthrow of President Legitime, apprehends that Port-Arthur will become a scene of terrible slaughter and riot, and that in order to protect the lives and property of Americans there a larger force than he has available on the Kearsarge will need to be landed. International law would only sanction the landing of men to protect the United States legation and consulate, but graver exigencies may arise, and it is desired to be ready to meet them.

A most satisfactory feature of Secretary Tracy's administration of the navy department is the employment of the best talent in the service in the conduct of various investigations. Leaving the bureaus to carry on their routine duties he has organized a large number of boards for reporting on important matters connected with the development, reorganization and improvement of the navy. Many of these boards have advisory functions, it being their responsible duty to outline the future policy of the department. The secretary notes upon the theory that the line and staff have been educated, and are employed at heavy expense to the country, and that it is the privilege of the department to regard them as accomplished experts, whose opinions and advice on all technical questions relating to the service should be decisive. He is making the largest possible use of their experience, education and interest in the welfare of the service.

William Ewart Gladstone has been prominently before the public for a period considerably exceeding fifty years. Most matters concerning his career have been dug out of the depths of secrecy. The London Daily Telegraph, in an article on the golden wedding, contrived to make a little revelation. Some three years after his marriage, it seems, and while at Hawarden, Mr. Gladstone went out shooting with his brother-in-law, the Rev. Stephen Glynne. He had fired off one barrel of his gun in a stubble field, and unconsciously kicked the other barrel. Lowering the butt end of the gun he proceeded to reload, when a stiff, unrelenting blow struck the trigger. The gun went off, happily doing no more harm than carrying away the index finger of the then rising statesman. It was a narrow escape. It is vain to talk of what might have been, but the loss of Mr. Gladstone at that date suggests a different history of England during the last forty years.

Father Damien, says the New York Tribune, who became a leper that he might minister to that afflicted class, and finally died a leper's death, has received honors accorded to few men. That his self-sacrifice is not an isolated case is shown by the report just received from China regarding the extraordinary career of an American missionary. The natives called him the "Christian Buddha," but his life work closely resembles that of the Galilean peasant who "went about doing good." Mr. Crossett adapted himself to the needs of the unfortunate classes among the Chinese, wearing their dress, partaking of their food, and visiting them when sick and in prison. Thousands of these who were comforted and relieved by him in all parts of the Empire will mourn his death. The work of such missionaries as Father Damien and Mr. Crossett, one a Roman Catholic priest and the other independent of all religious organizations, is a far greater witness to the living power of the gospel to which they directed than many volumes of learned treatises on fine points of doctrine. The more men do for the advancement of gospel precepts, the less will they need to defend this or that religious tenet.

Dr. J. Milton Bowers was convicted in San Francisco in 1886 of poisoning his wife, in order to obtain the insurance on her life, amounting to about $17,000, and was sentenced to be hanged. He took an appeal to the supreme court of the state and on October 23, 1887, before the tribunal had rendered a decision, the dead body of Henry Benbow, a brother of Dr. Bowers' wife, was found in a room in that city. A letter was found, purporting to be a confession of Benbow that he and not Dr. Bowers, was the cause of his sister's death. Circumstances led to a suspicion that the confession was forged and that Benbow was murdered. John A. Dimming was charged with being the latter's murderer, but he was acquitted and a book agent was arrested on suspicion. The supreme court afterwards granted Bowers a new trial. Friday, before Judge Wallace, the District Attorney moved for a dismissal of the case on the ground that not enough evidence could be secured to convict Bowers. The judge accordingly dismissed the case and Bowers was discharged from custody after having been imprisoned in the county jail for over three years.

Interested People.
 Advertising a patent medicine in the peculiar way in which the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam for Coughs and Colds does is indeed wonderful. He authorizes all druggists to give away a bottle for a sample bottle free, that they may try it before purchasing. The large bottles are 50c and $1.00. We certainly would advise a trial. It may save you from consumption.

SHE GETS MILLIONS.
 An immense fortune left by Mrs. Sarah Willbourn to Sarah Harvey of Newport. Newport, R. I., Aug. 17.—The contents of the will of the late Mrs. Sarah Willbourn were a great surprise to all the good people of Orange, who expected that she would leave her entire fortune to the Catholic church of that place. On the contrary, she leaves it all to her grand niece, Sarah Harvey of Newport, whom she has never seen, and until a few weeks ago, had never heard of.

The conditions of the will are that Sarah Harvey shall attend service at the Roman Catholic church at least one Sunday in the month, and shall annually give $1,000 toward the support of a Catholic convent in her city; that she shall at her marriage prefer her maiden name to that of her husband, and that she shall never become a member of a Protestant church. If at the age of 25 Miss Harvey shall be ready to fulfill all of the conditions she shall come in full possession of the personal property, real estate, etc., of the testator. The estate is worth $3,000,000.

Much Women be Allowed to Vote.
 The question of female suffrage has agitated the tongues and pens of reformers for many years, and good arguments have been advanced on both sides. Many of the latter sex could vote intelligently, and many would vote for their husbands' and give no thought to the merits of a political issue. They would all vote for Dr. Pierce's Favorite Remedy for the cure of the female sex. It is unequalled for the cure of leucorrhoea, abnormal discharges, morning sickness, and the countless ills to which women are subject. It is the only remedy for woman's peculiar weaknesses, and is sold by druggists, under a positive guarantee from the manufacturers, that it will give satisfaction in every case, or money will be refunded. See guarantee on wrapper around bottle.

HARVEST EXCURSIONS.
 The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway company have made arrangements for several harvest excursions through the west. The fare on these excursions will be one fare for the round trip. Tickets will be sold on August 6th and 20th, September 10th and 24th and October 8th, good for thirty days from date of sale, stop over privileges to be granted at any point west of the Mississippi river. These excursions will reach points in western Minnesota, Dakota, Iowa, Montana, Nebraska, Colorado, Arkansas, Texas, Indian Territory, New Mexico, Arizona and Idaho. This affords our people an excellent opportunity to visit these states and territories at a small expense.

ARREST OF JUSTICE FIELD.
 THE WARRANT SWORN OUT BY SARAH ALTHEA SERVED.
 On Habeas Corpus Proceedings the Judge is Released on $5,000 Bonds—The Criminal Record.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Aug. 17.—Justice Stephen J. Field of the United States Supreme court was arrested here Friday on a charge of being a party to the killing of David S. Terry at Lathrop last Wednesday morning. The application for a writ of habeas corpus was at once made, and the matter was referred by the United States circuit court, who granted the writ and released Justice Field on $5,000 bail. The warrant for the arrest of the justice was issued by a justice of the peace in Stockton, on the complaint of Mrs. Sarah Althea Terry, Sheriff Cunningham having arrived here with the warrant Thursday night, and applied to Judge Field to sign it. Judge Field refused to do so, and the police court to order a writ of habeas corpus to be issued. Judge Field was then taken to the police court and committed to the custody of the sheriff. He was then taken to the police court and committed to the custody of the sheriff.

Justice Field arrived at his chambers about noon, and with Judge Brower of Kansas and Judge Sawyer of Oregon, the arrival of the sheriff, Sheriff Cunningham went first to the marshal's office, and then, accompanied by Chief of Police Crowley, Capt. Loos, and United States Marshal Canby, proceeded to Justice Field's chambers. Justice Field arose to receive the warrant and formally made the arrest. An application was made at once for a writ of habeas corpus. Judge Sawyer granted the writ and ordered the justice to be released. The details of the contempt proceedings of September last, when Mrs. Terry caused the sensational scene in the circuit court room, are then told. The police next set forth that at the time of the shooting Justice Field was accompanied by David Nagle, deputy United States marshal, who was acting under instructions from the attorney general to arrest the justice. The justice was then taken to the police court and committed to the custody of the sheriff.

Declined to Honor Terry.
 Application was made by Attorney Critchfield to the supreme court of California to adjudge as a mark of respect to the memory of Judge Terry, ex-chief justice, Chief Justice Denio declined to entertain the motion in the following language, after remarking that he was sorry that the motion had been made: "It is a very unpleasant affair, but the court has fully considered the same and deems it the wisest method of treating the subject in silence. The sudden death of David S. Terry is notorious and it is the decision of this court that it takes no further action in the matter."

May Lynch Nagle.
 STOCKTON, Cal., Aug. 17.—In the present excited feeling over Judge Terry's death the body was removed from the morgue at noon and taken to the Episcopal church, where it lay in state for two hours and was viewed by a great number of people. Mrs. Terry occupied a pew near the altar and watched the face of the dead all the while. Several times she left the seat and threw herself upon the casket. The service was read by one of the vestrymen of the church. The body was buried in a cemetery in the town.

BISMARCK IS THE CAPITAL.
 The North Dakota Convention So Votes—Great Regulating There.
 BISMARCK, Dak., Aug. 17.—The agency is over. Bismarck is made the capital of North Dakota in the convention and the other public institutions are located and previously published. This decision was reached after a long and heated debate, by a vote of 58 to 30. The convention also adopted a resolution providing that all railroads and rolling stock shall be taxed at a rate of $10,000 a mile being stricken out. A section providing that all flowing streams and natural waterways shall forever remain the property of the state for irrigation, mining, or other purposes was adopted by a unanimous vote.

Delegate Parsons of Morton made another and this time a successful attempt to incorporate an anti-blacklist section in the constitution. William Burleigh introduced a section providing that any member of the legislature who accepts a railroad pass under any condition shall forfeit his office, and it was adopted. The section providing that the property of the wife acquired before or after marriage can not be taken for the debts of the husband was adopted.
